Bio

Mac Walton represents businesses, municipalities, and individuals on a wide array of litigation matters. He brings a breadth of knowledge, pragmatism, and thoughtfulness to each matter believing that litigation is more than just arguing – it's problem-solving. As a former law clerk in both trial and appellate courts, Mac is especially adept at researching and writing about challenging legal issues.

Mac is a graduate of the University of Maine School of Law, where he also served as editor-in-chief of the Maine Law Review and a teaching assistant in Legal Writing. His comment, Bail Reform and Intimate Partner Violence in Maine, was published in the Maine Law Review in 2019.

Mac resides in Brunswick with his wife, son and several cats. He is a lover of the outdoors, reading, writing, and listening to new music. As an outdoor enthusiast, he has kayaked down half of the Mississippi River and completed the Maine Marathon three times.
