Bio

As a member of the firm's litigation practice, Susan Weidner brings her expertise in procedure and crafting legal arguments to help her clients achieve their goals.

Prior to joining Drummond Woodsum, Susan served as a law clerk to the Honorable Thomas E. Humphrey of the Maine Supreme Judicial Court. She also completed federal judicial externships at both the trial and appellate level during her time at the University of Maine School of Law, where she was the recipient of the scholastic achievement award in criminal law and criminal procedure and a member of both Maine Law Review and the Moot Court Board. Before attending Maine Law, Susan worked for several years at Harvard University in support of its government relations portfolio. She received her undergraduate degree from Colby College, where she studied English literature.
